

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Lieutenant Colonel Anne G. Campbell is Associate Professor of Political Science and Chief of the American Politics and Policy Division at the Air Force Academy. She has previously completed INSS research on “Countering the Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction and Advanced Delivery Systems in Latin America,” and research for the Defense Intelligence Agency on the illicit production of narcotics in Peru. Colonel Campbell is a graduate of the Air Force Academy, and she holds an MBA in International Business from Bentley College, an MALD in International Relations from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, and a PhD in Political Science from the University of Colorado.

Major Charles D. Dusch, Jr. is an Assistant Professor of Military Strategic Studies and Director of the Cadet Aerospace Strategy and Instruction School at the Air Force Academy. He is a former Titan II ICBM Missile Crew Commander and is an F-15E Weapon Systems Officer. He is editor of Aerospace Combat Operations (2001) and has published articles in USAFA’s Airman Scholar. Major Dusch holds a BA in History from West Virginia University and an MS in Operations Research from the University of Arkansas.

Lieutenant Colonel Gwendolyn M. Hall is Professor of Political Science and Commander, Dean of the Faculty Squadron Section at the Air Force Academy. She is a member of the Executive Board of the International Studies Association, past Chair of its International Security Studies Section, and a member of the Executive Board of Women in International Security. She is coauthor of a series of publications: Tactical Nuclear Weapons: Debunking the Mythology (2002); “Triad 2025: The Evolution of a New Strategic Force Posture” in James M. Smith, ed. Nuclear Deterrence and Defense: Strategic Considerations (2001); US Counter-proliferation Strategy for a New Century” in James M. Smith, ed. Searching for National Security in an NBC World (2000); and A Post Cold-War Nuclear Strategy Model (1998). Colonel Hall holds a Master of Public Policy and a PhD in Policy Studies from the University of Maryland at College Park.

Captain Edward Kaplan is an Instructor of History at the Air Force Academy. He is an intelligence officer who has served with U-2 and SR-71 aircrews at Beale AFB as a watch officer, as flight commander at the Misawa Cryptologic Operations Center, and in a number of deployed functions including most recently field intelligence support for COMSFOR in Bosnia. Captain Kaplan is a graduate of the Air Force Academy, and he holds an MA in Military and Diplomatic History from the University of Calgary.

Colonel Kurt J. Klingenger is Vice Air Base Wing Commander, Lajes Air Base, Azores, Portugal. He previously served as Chief of the Air Staff's National Security Policy Division, Nuclear and Counterproliferation Directorate. His publications include Jeffrey A. Larsen and Kurt J. Klingenger, editors, Controlling Non-Strategic Nuclear Weapons: Obstacles and Opportunities (2001). He is a graduate of the Air Force Academy, and he holds an MA from the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies.

Dr. Jeffrey A. Larsen, the founding Director of the USAF Institute for National Security Studies (INSS), is a Senior Policy Analyst in the Strategies Group at Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC). He served as senior editor for the official Air Force history of the 1999 air war over Serbia, and is currently senior editor for the ongoing Task Force Enduring Look. His publications include coauthor (with James M. Smith) The Historical Dictionary of Arms Control and Disarmament (forthcoming); editor, Arms Control: Cooperative Security in a Changing Environment (2002); editor (with James M. Wirtz) Rockets' Red Glare: Missile Defenses and the Future of World Politics (2001); editor (with Kurt J. Klingenger) Controlling Non-Strategic Nuclear Weapons: Obstacles and Opportunities (2001); editor (with Thomas D. Miller) Arms Control in the Asia-Pacific Region (1999); and editor (with Gregory J. Rattray) Arms Control: Toward the 21st Century (1996). Dr. Larsen is a graduate of the Air Force Academy and a retired USAF officer. He holds a Masters Degree in national security affairs from the Naval Postgraduate School and both Masters and PhD degrees from Princeton University.

Mr. Thomas D. Miller is a Senior Policy Analyst in the Strategies Group at Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC). He retired from active USAF duty as Chief, National Security Policy Division at HQ USAF (XONP) where he was responsible for the development of Air Force policy on US arms control negotiations, treaty implementation, and compliance issues. His other military positions included Planner to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and National Security Council, Chief of the Air Force Theater Planning Support Division, Chief of the Strategic Air Command Policy and Doctrine Division, and United Nations Military Observer in Palestine. He has lectured on strategic topics at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government, the Wilton

Park UK conference series, the Defense Threat Reduction Agency International Conference on Controlling Arms, the National Defense University, and the Air War College. He is editor (with Jeffrey A. Larsen) of Arms Control in the Asia-Pacific Region (1999). Mr. Miller is a graduate of Florida State University, and he holds a Master of Arts degree from Central Michigan University.

Major Thomas S. Mowle is Assistant Professor of Political Science at the Air Force Academy where he chairs the Western European Area Studies Group. He is also a Fellow with the European Union Center at the University of Oklahoma. He is author of The United States and the European Union: Allies at Odds? (forthcoming). Major Mowle holds both BA (Government) and BS (Electrical and Computer Engineering) degrees from the University of Notre Dame, an MA in International Affairs from the University of Dayton, and a PhD in Political Science from The Ohio State University.

Dr. James M. Smith is Director, USAF Institute for National Security Studies (INSS) and Professor, Military Strategic Studies at the USAF Academy. Relevant to this publication, he is coauthor (with Jeffrey A. Larsen) of The Historical Dictionary of Arms Control and Disarmament (forthcoming); author of “Non-Strategic Nuclear Weapons and Arms Control: Implications for the US Air Force” in Jeffrey A. Larsen and Kurt J. Klingenberg, eds. Controlling Non-Strategic Nuclear Weapons: Obstacles and Opportunities (2001); editor of Nuclear Deterrence and Defense: Strategic Considerations (2001); and editor of Searching for National Security in an NBC World (2000). Dr. Smith is a graduate of the Air Force Academy and a retired USAF officer. He holds an MS from the University of Southern California and a Doctorate in Public Administration (Public Policy) from the University of Alabama.

Mr. Forrest E. Waller, Jr. is a Senior Scientist and corporate officer in the Strategies Group, Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC). During his Air Force career he served in fellowships at the White House, the Department of State, and the Center for Strategic and International Studies. He also served on the faculty at the Air Force Academy, as the Chief of the Western Hemisphere/Western Europe Branch at HQ Air Force Intelligence, as Senior USSR Strategic Forces Analyst in Air Force Intelligence, and as Senior Military Adviser for Strategic Arms Control Policy in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy. His recent publications include “Strategic Nuclear Arms Control” in Jeffrey A.

Larsen, ed. Arms Control: Cooperative Security in a Changing Environment (2002), and “Strategic Offensive Arms Control” in Jeffrey A. Larsen and Gregory J. Rattray, eds. Arms Control: Toward the 21st Century (1996). Mr. Waller is a graduate of the Air Force Academy, and he holds a Master of Public Affairs in International Affairs from Princeton University. He has also attended the National and International Security Manager’s Program at Harvard.

Dr. Michael O. Wheeler is a Senior Analyst in the Strategies Group, Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC). He recently served as staff director of the Commission on Maintaining US Nuclear Weapons Expertise (the Chiles Commission). During his Air Force career he served as Special Assistant to the Chief of Staff, US Air Force; Special Assistant to a Commissioner of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission; Special Assistant to the Deputy Secretary of State (White House Fellow); Special Assistant to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Staff Secretary, National Security Council; Chief, Nuclear Negotiations Division, Joint Staff (J-5); and Arms Control Advisor to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Air Force Member of the Chairman’s Staff Group. His recent publications include “A History of Arms Control” in Jeffrey A. Larsen, ed. Arms Control: Cooperative Security in a Changing Environment (2002), “Analytical Case Study on US-Russian Nuclear Arms Control” in An Assessment of Preventive Threat Reduction (2001), and Contributions of Nuclear Weapons to American Security During the Cold War (1999). Dr. Wheeler is a graduate of the Air Force Academy, and he holds an MA in Political Science from Georgetown University and a PhD in Philosophy from the University of Arizona.